SUBJECT :

U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command Briefing [REDACTED]

25X1

1. On Monday, 8 March 1982 at 1000-1130 in room 6E60, CIA Headquarters Building, Major James S. Cary of the Army's Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC), will present a briefing on his work in "living systems research," an analytical methodology developed over the past 30 years. In conjunction with the University of Louisville, Army Research Institute, and TRADOC, Major Cary has used this methodology as a tool to assess the operational effectiveness of U.S. Army battalions. The attached material highlights this effort to date. Major Cary will review the methodology and its application to U.S. Army forces, and is prepared to discuss its potential application to Soviet ground forces. [REDACTED]
